

Tyronne McCrindle

Tyronne McCrindle first became involved in activism in 2013 through his volunteer work with Ndifuna Ukwazi (NU), an activist organisation that promotes the realisation of Constitutional Rights and Social Justice. He has worked as an assistant for activist Zackie Achmat in 2015, and as an organiser at NU in 2016. Currently, Tyronne is the Chief of Staff at the Social Justice Coalition (SJC), a grassroots social movement campaigning for safe, healthy and dignified communities in some of South Africa's largest, most under-developed townships. Tyronne holds an MSc in Molecular and Cell Biology from the University of Cape Town.