

Gregory Solik

Junior member of the Cape Bar and former attorney. He has spent the last three years working with activists and public law lawyers on social justice campaigns, and legal education. In doing so, he has experience in constitutional and administrative law research and litigation, and hopes to develop a mixed commercial and public interest law practice. He loves learning and reading about law, economics and politics and devotes much of his spare time to the campaign for greater political accountability and transparency as a board member of My Vote Counts.
